

Way2Happiness & Peace Building Seminar Series

Seminar 2: The Foundation of a Good Family is the Relationship Between Husband and Wife

Interfaith Blessing: Commemorating the United Nations Day of Families The Day was proclaimed by the UN General Assembly in 1993 which reflects the importance the international community attaches to families.

The interactive seminar series "Way2Happiness" offers a holistic approach to life education, aiming to foster individuals as good people, promote quality education, and cultivate responsible global citizens. Grounded in universal values such as consciousness, responsibility, and yes, love, the program advocates the philosophy of "living for the sake of others" as the key solution for achieving happiness and fulfilment in life. By joining the "Way2Happiness" community, participants engage in meaningful discussions, exchange insights, and acquire practical tools for personal development and positive social change. Here's what you can expect from the "Way2Happiness" program:

Holistic Life Education: The program provides a comprehensive approach to personal development, encompassing various aspects of life such as mental, emotional, and social well-being.

Universal Values: "Way2Happiness" is built on universal values that transcend cultural and geographical boundaries. Participants are encouraged to embrace these values as guiding principles for leading purposeful and fulfilling lives.

Community Engagement: The program fosters a sense of community and belonging, encouraging individuals to connect in their journey towards happiness and personal growth.

Philosophy of Living for Others: Central to the program is the philosophy of "living for the sake of others," emphasizing the importance of altruism, empathy, and compassion in enhancing individual well-being and promoting social harmony.

	When 300 people from around the world went to Israel and the West Bank in 2004, Randall organised the 7 buses over the 2 weeks visiting key Christian, Jewish and Muslim locations usually hard to access for tourists. When World Parliament of Religions came to Melbourne 2009, Randall was there for all 7 days, assisting in 4 presentations, attending dozens more.
	A firm believer in the Golden Rule (Treat others the way you would want to be treated), Randall is often volunteering.
	"In 1984, I brought together forty religious scholars, instructing them to compare the teachings that appear in the sacred textsWhat they found was that the sacred texts of religions convey the same or similar teachings more than 70 percent of the time." Dr Moon ("As A Peace-Loving Global Citizen" page 240)

(20 minutes)	Presenter: Dr John Bellavance
	Oceania Coordinator, International Association of Academicians for Peace and Vice-President, Universal Peace Federation Australia
	Once we understand that love is the central value of life, then we need to find out how to realise the ideal of love in our relationships.
	 On the foundation of love, the values of truth, beauty and goodness are formed. Giving and receiving love is a vital practice that underpins happiness and wellbeing. Joy remains dormant until we exchange love.

· · · · · ·	Activity – Write in your journal and share with others.

	How did the emotional experiences associated with the four spheres of love formed who we are for good and for ill?
	Are you willing to change yourself for the sake of your partner? If yes, what?
1:20 – 1:40	Topic: The Foundations of a Good Marriage – Part 2
(20 minutes)	Presenter: Dr John Bellavance
	1. The first value and practice that underpins a relationship is living for the sake of the others (altruism). The essence of moral authority is service, namely subordinating oneself for the sake of a higher purpose or showing love for another.
	2. The simple principle is that genuine and sustainable love is realised by giving first, while false love is self-serving.
	3. Both self-centred and changing love and genuine and unchanging love exist. Changing love fluctuates according to the interests of the moment. Because it is self-centred, it changes.
	Activity and Discussion – Write in your journal and share with others.
1:40 – 1:55	Pair and share with another your fundamental ideas about relationships.
